He often wishes the recipient of the letter a Merry Christmas and informs them of the highlights of the past year. You can prepare a good Christmas letter by following these points: Start the letter on a positive note Keep your letter short and sweet Write in simple words Keep your audience in mind Include Make staff Use these helpful tips while writing a Christmas letter to a friend: Start the letter with warm greetings Specify the reason for writing the letter Keep a soft and polite tone Avoid grammatical and spelling mistakes Mention your heartfelt Christmas wishes at the end Yes, Christmas letters are still relevant as they provide a recap of a person's previous year. It is also a tradition followed by many people around the world, and therefore this holiday letter should focus on broader messages and events. An official letter is a letter written in an official language for professional communication. An informal letter is written in a friendly way for occasional or personal communication. A college recommendation letter is a validation of a college applicant written to enhance the chances for admission. Letters of recommendation are short, formal statements that should highlight positive qualities and explain why the candidate will be successful in college studies. Although friends or family might be able to sing the applicant's praises, the best letters are usually written by teachers or employers. Table of Contents This letter should provide basic details of the relationship between the rapporteur and the applicant and indicate the positive characteristics of the applicant. It should include: An explanation of how the rapporteur came to know the applicant Important positive qualities held by the applicant on the success in college Jokes depicting the character and ability of the applicant Although it is easy to write a laundry-list of positives, it is better to tell a story. Simply put, try to show rather than say why the applicant will be a success in higher education. Why use a college recommendation letter? Many colleges require recommendation letters from applicants. But even if recommendations are not a strict need, they can help build the case for acceptance. These letters matter what they say, but they also add some default value to an app just to be included. Even if the admissions committee does not read the letters of recommendation carefully, it is likely to be noted that they were included in the application, and that the applicant in the kind of person can drum up recommendations - a positive quality all of his own. Who to choose? A teacher, coach, or counselor are ideal choices and should be able to report key facts about the student, including the ability to describe their personality traits, work habits, and skills. In addition, the person chosen by the student should be someone with whom they were related outside school hours, such as part of a voluntary program, sports team, or academic association. One advantage to this is that colleges and universities understand that, beyond a full curriculum, having other activities takes away from school work. Therefore, if it comes down to an app with a general reference to another with an authentic reference, the latter will probably get the nod. (Video) How to write (Format) A letter of recommendation should fill out an entire page (usually 400 - 500 words) and an introduction, two (2) paragraphs of the body, and a conclusion. The student should be described in a way that highlights both his academic abilities and his personal qualities. If the letter is well written, it will provide a complete picture of the candidate that exceeds their grades and personal resume. Introduction Import should be anywhere from 2 to 6 sentences that, more or less, describe the with the student. Depending on the person who may be as small as: Example #1 Dear Entry Committee, It is with great satisfaction that I recommend Peter to the University of Oak Lane. I've had the pleasure of teaching and coaching Peter for the past 2 years as part of our school's maths team and I've watched his age in a smart, mature young man. In this admission sample the student is recommended by the head of a remarkable association (the mathematics team), which is a separate recommendation. Example #2 Dear Admissions Committee, It's an honor to introduce Jake to Faraway College as a high school basketball coach. Over the last 4 years, I've seen him develop into one of the most impressive players in our school and it was his set of skills that helped lead our team to a winning season last year. Without his leadership skills and discipline, our team wouldn't have had its success. Here we have a coach who introduces the student immediately as a leader and disciplined player. Two (2) key personality traits that a school seeks in a candidate. Paragraph #1 The paragraph of the first body of the letter should provide a positive description of the character of the student, as well as list any achievements and prizes that may have been won. This paragraph will provide the main body of the letter and should therefore be at least 4-6 sentences in length. Example #1 Laura has proven herself to be generous, enthusiastic, and helpful both inside and outside the classroom. Not only is she one of my top physics students, but she also has a responsibility to organize student activities, and speaking at assemblies as president of the Student Council. In this capacity, Laura has proven to be a confident, well-organized, diligent, and capable leader. She has participated as a teacher in the peer teaching program. I personally oversee this program and can attest not only to Laura's ability to explain and give instructions, but also to her patience and deep commitment to helping others. I am also pleased to say that I was able to award Laura with the AAPT Outstanding Student Certificate for her exemplary performance during her two years as a student in my physics classes. In this example, a physics teacher presents the positive character traits of the student, indicating the student's personal achievements and commitments. Example #2 When I first introduced myself to Jordan, I was immediately impressed by his maturity and confidence. Little did I know that five years later I would be even more impressed by this young man's incredible development. Jordan is known throughout the school for his athletic achievements in athletics, as well as for a standout performer in the theater program. As a Jordan consultant I was able to track his incredible personal and academic progress, and I can attest that with the smile and perseverance of winning there is no mountain he cannot climb. Staying after school for extra help in math science. Jordan has managed to improve his academic performance to such an extent that he has been included in the Honor Roll school for two years of operation. This sample has a school counselor who draws on their long-term relationship with the student to describe their personal impression of the student's character, emphasizing the student's work ethic and exemplary performance in many areas. Paragraph #2 The second paragraph of the body is to be extended to the first, emphasizing the student's participation in school and school groups, indicating specific examples of the positive characteristics of their character. Try to connect the various interests and abilities of the student to paint a coherent and unforgettable portrait. This paragraph can be executed from 3-6 sentences, depending on the number of examples given. An #1 cassandra's personal character is just as impressive as her academic achievements. As a public speaker he is able to keep the attention of an entire assembly, and when he speaks one-on-one he displays compassionate listening skills, as well as a strong intellect. Cassandra cares about those around her and is always ready to give a helping hand or a word of encouragement. In its third year, it launched a sustainability program along with its peers, which now performs an annual audit of school waste and gives presentations on waste reduction and practices. With her unwavering enthusiasm and sense of humor, having Cassandra in a classroom is fine for her teachers and fellow students alike. The above sample uses descriptive language and specific examples to highlight the student's communication skills, personal interests and positive personality traits. Example #2 As captain of the girls' basketball team, Melinda has participated in two state championships and led our school to a victory in an area tournament. This year, she has served as the editor of this year's school yearbook, demonstrating her ability to outsource work to her assistant editors and organize an effective workflow. Melinda is not only a born leader and meticulous worker, she is a kind-hearted and compassionate person trying to make a positive impact on the world around her. This example uses less descriptive language, rather than relying more on examples of the student's extracurricular activities, demonstrating their participation, leadership skills, and sense of responsibility. Conclusion The conclusion paragraph can be anywhere from 2-4 long sentences and its purpose is two-way: to summarize the author's personal recommendation, and to provide a method of communication for further questions. Example #1 the ability of the to perform competitively under pressure will certainly serve him well in a college environment. He is an organized, intelligent and capable young man who would be an excellent addition to your school. Feel free to contact me if you have any questions at (555) 414-4141 or JanTravis@email.com. Honestly, Jan Travis Biology Teacher Away High School The Above It has a brief summary of the positive characteristics of the student, as well as two contact methods contained in the paragraph body. An #2 in conclusion, Clayton has my respect and my highest recommendation as an exemplary student. He has demonstrated excellence in everything he puts his mind to, whether working on a team project, or designing a technical experiment. Clayton's keen interest in understanding how things work and his natural ability to science makes me think he'll be a valuable addition to your ranks. Please do not hesitate to contact me at the email address provided below if you have any questions. Frankly, Mr. John Lewis Physics Teacher West Island High School In this final paragraph, the summary is specifically geared toward the college program that the student applies for. With this position, the author clearly demonstrates why the student is a suitable candidate for a particular college or university. Sample 1 Dear Admission Committee, I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation on behalf of Karen Leyland, a more promising student and wonderful person. I had the pleasure of teaching Mathematics to Karen during her young and senior years here at Kirby Prep School. If it was appropriate for teachers to choose favorites, Karen would definitely be one of my top choices. He has a winning mentality full of movement and perseverance that goes unmatched. She is always attentive in class and has a knack for engaging the entire class in participating, but the trait most admired for Karen is her unwavering kindness. Karen was at the top of her class in her senior year of high school and has always been among the top 5 in previous years. Its ability to understand complex concepts and solve problems faster than most people is the main reason why it qualified for the National Merit Scholarship Program. This achievement was earned by paying her undivided attention to the classroom and doing extra work outside the classroom. She is always able to manage her time wonderfully and willing to give a hand to other students who are struggling with their work. While some are destined to develop leadership skills, Karen seems to possess the intrinsic qualities of a born leader and she is able to achieve this without an air of arrogance or superiority towards her peers. Mathematics is Karen's main academic focus, but she is also thriving in the music department. He plays saxophone in the jazz band and has a deep understanding of the connections between music and mathematics. I've heard her game on many occasions and it's obvious she has an amazing mind for understanding music and I'm also lucky enough to play music with Karen when both can spare my time and favorite part so it's the change in teacher-student dynamics where I have to play the role of student again. It is refreshing and confirms my belief that teachers learn just as much from their students as students do from teachers. Teachers. college would be thrilled to accept Karen as she is an excellent student with so much to offer. Our school was very lucky to have her as a student and I'm sure your school will feel the same way if it's accepted. Karen embraces constructive criticism and strives to improve on every aspect of her education and beyond. She deserves all the good things that will inevitably come her way in her postsecondary years. I would be happy to answer any further questions you have about Karen or Kirby Prep School. Frankly, Erik Perkins Math Teacher Georgiana Bruce Kirby Prep School Sample 2 Dear Admission Committee, It is without hesitation that I write to you in relation to Ted's acceptance in your prestigious institution. I am a counselor at Crescent Valley High School and have had the pleasure of working with Ted throughout his high school career. I've seen him develop into a well-rounded and mature young man who will accomplish many great things in his life. He is a talented and hardworking man who finds joy in helping others. Ted has amazing people skills and can make everyone feel comfortable around him. In Ted's first year of high school, he came to me and needed some guidance. He had gone through some serious family problems and this was causing his school work to suffer. I feel very lucky to have been given the opportunity to help Ted through these difficult times. He is a compassionate, loving and self-coached man, with an unwavering positive outlook on life. Once he had worked out his own issues, all he wanted to do was take his experiences and help other students with similar problems. He started volunteering at North View Elementary School, talking to children and even teaching on multiple subjects. I've never met anyone who wasn't immediately in love with Ted's friendly behavior. Throughout his school career, Ted has excelled in every area of his education and has also undertaken multiple extracurricular activities. In his senior year, Ted was president of the student council, captain of the basketball team, and an honor student. He has become ad able to juggling multiple workloads. He also continued counseling at primary school over the years. Still, he wanted to make a bigger difference. He decided to present his prospects for life by holding a seminar in the gym. Most of the school attended to listen to Ted as he spoke eloquently about overcoming your fears and insecurities and turning them into positive thinking. It was a mesmerizing 20-minute speech that led to a loud standing ovation. Someone managed to film the presentation and the video has thousands of views on YouTube. I'm very Ted approached me to write this letter, as I am so impressed by his achievements and his immense potential. He's a charming young man who's able to see the good in everyone. If Ted is admitted to the Counseling Psychology Program, there's no doubt in my mind that he'll excel. Excelled, this field and move on to change many lives for the better. The confidence and charisma he has developed during his high school career is phenomenal and I look forward to seeing them continue in college. Please contact me if you would like to further discuss Ted's admission to your college. As for, William Mackenzie Guidance Advisor Crescent Valley High School Sample 3 September 1, 2017 Dear Admissions Committee, I am submitting this letter in support of Jim's application for admission to the class of 2022 at Michigan State University. I've been Jim's supervisor at Bellevue Coffee since he was hired in April 2014. In this time, he has consistently shown himself to be a stable, professional, and pleasant worker. Although this is his first job, he has demonstrated professional instincts and bulletproof work ethic from day one. A short anecdote to highlight Jim's character: Last Sunday, our early shift barista cried ill. While I, as a store manager, would normally cover such an expected absence, I was otherwise dealing with a family medical issue. I approached Jim, and he enthusiastically offered to take this morning shift, even though it meant 16 hours a day to him. Although Jim usually works 20 hours a week, I understand that he has only improved his grades since starting this job. Being a first-hand witness to his quick thinking, judgment, and workplace ethics, it's no surprise to hear that he again made the dean's list last spring. I have no doubt that Jim will be a successful member of the class of 2022 and offer my wholehearted support for him. Honestly, Ryan Shannon Shannon.
